

We're still planting a hedge In Brockwell Park Calling all volunteers

To date, 337 meters of native hedgerow has been planted along the Cressingham Ridge on the western side of the park. There are still lots more to plant. When it is completed it will be the longest, newly planted hedgerow in Lambeth and all down to volunteers!

More help is needed to complete the task. So if you're looking for some FREE exercise while making a major contribution to the park landscape and helping biodiversity along the way, then we would be very pleased to see you.

Stay all day or just for a few hours. Whatever FREE time you may have a little contribution makes all the difference and goes a long way.
Leave your mark!

Funding from Biff Award and The Veolia Environmental Trust has enabled Brockwell Park Community Partners (BPCP) along with our partner group Trust for Conservation Volunteers (TCV) to undertake this very ambitious project.
